GRAB YOUR COAT

We could all do with something bold to see in the new season, and Living Divani's graphically designed Tonbo coat rack is guaranteed to impress. Its graphic silhouette is made from steel tubes powder-coated in gunmetal grey, anchored with a column of solid Carrara marble. Tonbo coat rack, from £1,656, Junpei & Iori Tamaki for Living Divani (nest.co.uk)

FINE DINING

If there's a brand to befriend for dining tables made to get dinner guests talking, it's Bontempi Casa. Inviting German-Italian design duo Bernhardt & Vella to the drawing room, its Delta model once more takes the talking point down below, featuring a matrix-style, antique bronze frame held together by bronze nuts and bolts-style fixtures. Factor in the matt black marble top and you have a piece worth dressing up for. Delta dining table, €4,474.00 (bontempi.it/it_en)

GO WITH THE GRAIN

Consult Rimadesio if sleek wall divisions and storage solutions are high on your agenda. The devil is in the detail on its Modulor system designed by Giuseppe Bazzio. Expect a walnut exterior, hinges seamlessly built into its linear pattern, a synthetic leather interior, magnetic closings and discreet aluminium handles. Smooth. Modulor system, price on request (rimadesio.it/en)

The Modulor system taps into the current vogue for all things wood-clad and naturally textured

NEAT IDEA

This table from Lema might look simple but it's got a handy mission in mind: turn to an open-on-one side design that allows it to tuck under the base of a sofa, create a neat surface for hot drinks and laptops. There's fun to be had in the customisation, too: choose tops in different finishes and over 40 lively colours. Ortis coffee table from £970, Gabriele e Oscar Barattini for Lema (gomodern.co.uk)
